All about farm taxes for 1982

By JAMES A. SMITH

Sam Waddell, Extension Farm Management Agent, has been invited to prepare this week's column relating to farm taxes. The Farmers Tax Guide referred to in the article is available at this office at no cost --- sorry it cannot be mailed.

A meeting to discuss farm taxes and to answer questions will be held at the County Extension Office, February 7, at 7:30 p.m.

FARM TAXES

For your 1982 farm tax return, there are few changes from the 1981 return you filed. There is a business expense that is deductible for 1982 that you did not have for 1981. Before taking this deduction you will need to evaluate your tax alternatives to see if the deduction will be advantageous to you tax wise over the period of time on the item selected. The deduction is up to $5,000 of the cost of certain business assets you buy during the year. This deduction is known as the Section 179 expense deduction. You do not get investment credit on this deduction and the amount is subtracted from the adjusted basis of the item before depreciating.

This year there is a new deduction that you and your spouse can take if you both have income from working. The deduction is limited to $1500 or 5% of eligible earned income, whichever is less. To take the deduction, you must file a Schedule 1040W.

There has been a lot of publicity about charitable contribution for non-itemizers. This deduction is very limited in scope. The maximum deduction is 25% of the first $100 of contributions which limits you to $25.00 maximum.

The Individual Retirement Arrangement was changed to a limit of $2,000 or 100% of compensation. Where your spouse does not work the limit for both is now $2250. The only limitation on the division between husband and wife is the amount cannot exceed $2000 for one spouse. Should the wife have off farm income then she could fund her own IRA up to a limit of $2000 or 100% of compensation.

Form 4797 seems to give farmers more difficulty than any other form they file. This form is used to report the sale of capital items used in the trade or business. Items such as depreciable machinery and equipment, depreciable real property, cattle and horses used in a trade or business for draft, breeding, dairy, or sporting purposes, livestock other than cattle and horses used in trade or business for draft, breeding, dairy or sporting purposes, and farmland. These items are covered in a chart on page 31 of the Farmers Tax Guide. The chart will give you the holding periods and the various parts of the form they are reported in.

Some changes for 1983 that may be of help to you: medical expenses is increased from 3 to 5% of adjusted gross income, one-half (up to $150) of medical insurance premium expenses is repealed, nonbusiness casualty and theft losses (after reduction for the $100 floor for each loss) is only deductible to the extent such losses exceeds 10% of adjusted gross income.

Investment tax credit change for 1983 - the farmer will have an election on treatment of this tax. One option is that the basis of an asset is to be reduced by one-half of the amount of the investment credit allowed. The other option is that in lieu of the above option the investment credit is reduced to 8% for recovery property other than 3 year property and 4% for recovery property that is 3 year property.

After 1982 the interest rate on underpayments and overpayments of tax will be adjusted twice a year, on January 1 and July 1. On January 1, 1983 the interest rate is 16% and it will be compounded daily.

A Grain-Marketing Program will be held Friday, Jan. 28 at 1 p.m. at District Extension Office Auditorium. All grain producers are urged to attend.

Sgt. Scott in exercise

Army Sgt. Alonzo M. Scott, son of William E. and Margaret H. Scott at Star Route 1, Pamplin, participated in Brim Frost 1983, a U.S. Readiness Command joint-service exercise held in Alaska.

The exercise is designed to test and evaluate active and reserve component commanders in joint procedures and tactics. It also gauges their ability to function in an arctic environment.

Exercise participants were personnel from Army and Air Force units already assigned to Alaska, a Canadian light infantry battalion, soldiers from Fort Lewis, Wash., and Fort Campbell, Ky., and reservists and national guardsmen from 14 different states.

Scott is a supply specialist with the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis.

He is a 1978 graduate of St. Pauls College, Lawrenceville, Va.

Sybil Franklin considered for Laurd Scholarship

Sybil Franklin of Pamplin, a sophomore at Saint Paul's College, was one of seven finalists for the Laurd Scholarship.

The scholarship, which is administered by the English-Speaking Union, enables a student from an American college or university where the student body is predominately black to spend his or her junior year at a British University.

Franklin, a sociology major, said she was honored to be one of the students interviewed by the English-speaking Union in New York, even if she did not receive the scholarship. She was interviewed Jan. 12.

Saint Paul's College is an Episcopal church-related, four-year, co-educational institution with a diverse liberal arts academic program.

Cloud Abernathy

Leasing agency begins

Cloud Abernathy announced the opening this week of his "Engage-A-Car" brokerage at Lee Grant Avenue, Appomatox. The company will be active in leasing new cars, vans and light trucks - foreign and domestic - to individuals and firms through the Engage-A-Car program.

According to Abernathy, Engage-A-Car differs from other programs in that it, "combines the best features of both open and closed-end leasing, and then introduces many additional benefits. The end result is that the consumer is able to obtain the exact vehicle he or she wants, with no down payment and lower monthly payments."

"One of the unique features of Engage-A-Car" pointed out Abernathy, "is our Protection Plan Option which offers our clients a no-lose opportunity. If, at the end of their engagement period, the used car market is up, he has the right to dispose of the car on his own and he is welcome to pocket all of profits. On the other hand, if the market is down, he can simply exercise his option to return the car and just walk away. That's why Engage-A-Car is really the common sense way to drive the car of your choice."

"The reason for ther low monthly payments is that with our method, the future trade-in value of the new car is deducted in advance. By doing this, we are able to dramatically reduce the monthly payments.

"In other words, if the books say your $7,000 car will be worth $3,000 at the end of three years, we simply deduct that $3,000 immediately. That means your monthly payments have to be lower! Also, the consumer can utilize the funds he would have normally put into a down payment - for vacations, appliances, home remodeling or any worthwhile purpose.

In order to qualify an individual must be 25 years of age and making a salary of $15,000 single, or husband and wife combined.

Abernathy and his wife, the former Jean Delbridge have lived in Appomattox since 1974. They are the parents of three boys, Shane and twins, Donnie and Ronnie.

Abernathy, who works for the County of Appomatox had a building supply business in Georgia from 1960 until 1973. Abernathy is originally from Lawrenceville and his wife from Emporia.

They are members of Bible Baptist Church and he is president of the Oakville Ruritan Club.

Block announces details for new payment-in-kind program

By TOM CONRAD

PAYMENT-IN-KIND [PIK] PROGRAM DETAILS ANNOUNCED

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced details of a payment-in-kind (PIK) program for the 1983 crops of wheat, corn, grain sorghum. PIK is basically simple. A farmer who take out of production additional acres over what he agrees to take out under the current program will receive as payment, a certain amount of the commodity he would have grown on these acres. The commodity is his to do with as he wishes. Commodities for the PIK program will come from farmer-owned reserve, regular loan or CCC owned stocks.

There is a three-fold objective with PIK. Reduce production, reduce surplus stock holdings, and avoid increased budget outlays that would otherwise be necessary under price support programs. Worldwide demand is weak, due to severe financial problems of major foreign customers and a strong dollar making our exports more expensive. It is unlikely our surplus will be substantially reduced any time soon by increased exports. PIK is aimed at bringing supply more in line with demand.

Farmers can expect to receive the same or greater net returns while the stock adjustments are occurring. Commodity prices may not increase significantly in the near term, though they should firm as storage payments permit greater marketing flexibility and buyers realize that stocks are being reduced.

Once stocks are reduced significantly through the PIK program, then substantial opportunities for price increases will exist. Farmers taking part in PIK will also avoid some variable costs, and their production risks will also be lowered. In addition, financially strapped farmers participating in the PIK program will not have to borrow as much for production expenses.

PIK has built-in safeguards to assure that there will be enough production so the U.S. will remain a reliable supplier to domestic and foreign customers. The program is self-terminating; it is planned for 1983 and, if necessary, the 1984 crops. When excess supplies are reduced to a level more in line with demand, PIK will go out of existence. Also, sound conservation practices will be applied to more acreage and storage space problems will be lessened.

Signup for PIK began on January 24th and will run through March 11th. Farmers have four possible options for making their 1983 plans. They may participate only in the regular farm programs; participate in the regular program plus the 10-30 percent PIK; withdraw the entire base acreage if their whole base bid is accepted; or not participate at all.

A farmer wishing to take his entire base acreage out of production may bid to do so by specifying the percent of the farm yield that he will accept in return for diverting all of his acreage. He may bid any amount but it must be no more than the offer rate for the 10-30 percent PIK.

The number of whole base bids accepted will depend on the level of signup for the 10-30 percent PIK, the supply-demand situation for each commodity, conditions in local areas, and other relevant factors. However, in no case would the amount diverted exceed 50 percent of the total base in the county. CCC reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Conservation use acreage eligibility requirements would be the same as previously announced 1983 programs, except haying and grazing will be permitted only on winter wheat planted prior to the announcement of PIK. Under summer fallow rules, PIK acreage will have to be acreage that would have been planted in 1983.

When farmers sign up for PIK, they will contract to receive a certain amount of bushels of the commodity they would have produced on PIK acres. This will be the announced percentage times the farm program yield times the number of PIK acres. The percentages are 95 for wheat, and 80 for corn, grain sorghum.

Payment in kind will be in terms of #1 wheat, #2 yellow corn and #2 grain sorghum. Producers will receive their payments in kind from CCC STOCKS. Quantity adjustments will be made to account for variations in the quality of commodities.

Producers entering PIK with outstanding reserve or regular price support loans must make the commodities under loan available to CCC for use in the program in return for liquidation of their loans They cannot forfeit or redeem their commodities under loan and then draw additional commodities from CCC stocks.

Loans which mature before producers receive their payment in kind will be extended and storage will be paid by CCC from maturity until receipt of the payment in kind.

Program participants will receive payments in kind during the normal harvest period. October 15 will be receiving time in Appomattox. In order to give the producer marketing flexibility, the CCC will pay storage costs from the date of payment in kind to redemption or delivery of the commodity not to exceed five months. The annual storage rate will be 26½ cents per bushel for wheat, corn and sorghum.

Producers redeeming farm-stored grain from the reserve will be compensated for an additional seven months storage from the redemption date, less any unearned storage. To ensure adequate grain where requested, CCC will trade grain receipts with elevators, if necessary. Quality adjustment will be made.

There is no specific priority for redemption for the grains. Stocks may come from the farmer-owned reserve, or any year's outstanding loans.

Any grain going into the farmer-owned reserve after January will not be used in the PIK program, unless the loan request has already been filed. Eligibility for all 1982 reserve loans will continue until March 31 for small grains and May 31 for feed grains.

Also announced are provisions for the 1983 Reserve Program. Entry into the 1983 reserve will be allowed after a 9-month regular loan period. Entry level for all commodities will be at the regular loan rate. Storage payments of 26½ cents per bushel will be allowed for wheat, corn, sorghum and barley, with 20 cents for oats.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation will increase the yield guarantees of insured producers participating in PIK. Participating at the additional 10% but less than 20% level increases the yield guarantee by 6%; participating between 20% but less than 30% will result in a guarantee increase of 8%; and participating at the maximum of 30% will increase the yield guarantee by 10%. FCIC is offeirng these higher guarantees without a corresponding rise in premium rates because risk of less is reduced.

Farmers can get full details on the PIK program from the ASCS office Also, farmers can call a toll-free number, 800/368-5942, to get answers to their questions. This number will open for calls weekdays from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m., EST.

Interim regulations will be published in the Federal Register with a request for comments. producers entering into an agreement during the comment period will be given the opportunity to withdraw from the agreement should there be material changes in the final regulations. Comments must be received by February 11 and should be sent to: Dr. Howard Williams, Director, Analysis Division, USDA/ASCS, Room 3741 South Building, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013. (202) 447-3391.
